REGINA,

SASKATCHEWAN

1963

Minister of Education

*The Honourable
O. A. Turnbull*

YOU HAVE been students for several years and now you are on the verge of entering a new and different life as teachers.

May I relate a Carl Sandburg fable wherein an old settler stood by his gate one evening as a youthful traveller came along the road and asked, "What sort of people live in this valley?" "Well, stranger," said the settler, "what kind of people were there in the country you came from?" "Old man," said the stranger, "they were mostly an unfriendly, mean and spiteful lot of people." "What a pity, stranger, I am afraid you will find the same sort of neighbours here." Another traveller followed soon after and the same questions were exchanged except that the stranger said in answer to the question about the kind of people who lived where he came from. "Why they were a friendly, hard-working, truly wonderful lot of people." And the old settler replied, "Welcome stranger, you will find the same sort of neighbours in this valley."

Like Sandburg's travellers you graduates of 1963 will find the same sort of people in the country that lies ahead of you as you have known in the past. If your associations have been happy and rewarding, you have nothing to fear. If you have known too many unfriendly, disagreeable people, you still need not fear because you are young, you can correct your shortcomings, and you can be wonderfully surprised and encouraged by the good will and the friendship that awaits you in the teaching profession.

May I congratulate you on your choice of vocation and wish you all that is good in the future.

O. A. TURNBULL

Director of Teacher Training

Dr. C. P. Collins

YOU, who are graduating from Teachers College in 1963, may think it strange, but I do envy you.

I envy you because:

- you have had the opportunity of attending a Teachers College whose Principal is Dr. Tait, one of the outstanding teacher educators in Canada
- you have had the opportunity of being taught by such an outstanding group of master teachers
- you are about to enter the world of teaching, a world that is in a state of flux, a world that, while it may at times be somewhat frightening, is always challenging, interesting and exciting
- you are entering a profession dedicated to the highest ideals of service to its fellow men at a time when it, more than any other, is expected to prepare the way for peace among nations and a happy life for all.

God speed and Good Luck in all your endeavours.

C. P. COLLINS

Dr. J. W. Tait
Principal
Saskatchewan Teachers College
Regina

ONE of the most rewarding experiences which I have had as Principal of Teachers College during the past year has been the simple contact with youth—young men and young women bent on a purpose, their lives full of the present, but somehow carrying in their faces and in their personalities the potentialities of the future. I have in my possession the Yearbook of the graduating class of 1903. I suspect that the young men and women in that class of sixty years ago were much like those in the class of 1963. It is not only interesting, but almost thrilling to contemplate the lives of those older graduates and realize that so many of them are key personalities in the history of this Province and of this country. They apparently had stars to guide them, big purposes to pursue, and great capacity for labor in solving the problems of their immediate future.

And so my simple message to you as the members of the class of 1963 is the expression of a hope that, in your thinking, you will catch a glimpse of the possible greatness which is in you; that you will set your course by stars that lead to places where it is worthwhile to go; that you will realize that the future is yours if you will only explore its possibilities; and that your lives as teachers and citizens of this land will be dominated by the ideal of service to your church, to your community and to your fellowmen.

My good wishes go with you as you leave this institution to serve in the schools in the near and far-away parts of our Province.

Valedictory

SHAKESPEARE spoke eloquently of leave taking with his "Good-night, good-night! parting is such sweet sorrow."

How apropos are Shakespeare's words to the occasion this morning! It is rather difficult and awkward to speak of matters of the heart, yet this is a right and proper time to voice our emotions. Surely sweet sorrow lingers in the hearts of all of us as we break the ties of school and friendship and look back on the difficult times and the happy times with a new and growing nostalgia.

We are leaving Teachers College. We are feeling pretty certain of ourselves now and we are looking out at the world we will conquer with confidence and optimism. This is as it should be, but let us never forget that our education is far from complete—that it will not end so long as we live.

There is the story of the young Britisher who, having just received his college degree, rushed out and exclaimed, "Here I am, World—I have my A.B.!"

The World replied, "Sit down, son, and I'll teach you the rest of the alphabet."

Each of us will be leaving something of ourselves at Teachers College, and each of us will be taking something of the teachers who have been our mentors and our counsellors during the past nine months. The giving has been pretty well in our favour, but in the years ahead we will pay back this debt of wisdom and knowledge with interest.

This morning is one of triumph. Last September, we met as students. Now, we meet as teachers, and, like Miss MacLean, the brave little soul in Mr. Hill's favourite "teacher story," we have, or soon shall have, a certificate to prove it.

To the Principal and Faculty, we owe a lasting debt of gratitude. Perhaps the first installment of this is being paid back this morning, because you, the Faculty, now see before you the results of your hard work, your skill and your dedication. On behalf of my fellow graduates, I offer our thanks.

There is another important group represented here today to whom we are grateful. I speak of our parents, whose unfailing inspiration, guidance, and material aid are prime factors in our being here today to graduate as teachers.

At this time next year, we will, for the first time, see our own pupils "graduate." The experience is certain to generate within us mixed feelings of pride and sadness, and quite likely give rise to unmanly (but I might say womanly) lumps in our throats. That very important moment in time will bring home the great significance of the challenge and trust that is ours as teachers.

As we travel life's ways, let us continue to grow in wisdom and stature, and let us not take ourselves too seriously. Of teaching, Mark Twain once said, rather irreverently, "Soap and education are not as sudden as a massacre, but they are more deadly in the long run."

This morning, we are meeting as the "class of '62" for the last time. In a few short weeks, we will become members of communities within and beyond the borders of Saskatchewan. May our endeavours be ever guided by a nobility of purpose transcending the corrupting influences that will assail us from time to time.

Let us walk the road ahead with head held high and with purposeful stride, never looking back except in happy retrospect. There is a simple truth in the words of Elbert Hubbard, who said, "The object of teaching a child is to enable him to get along without his teacher."

Being partial to poetry, and with a fatal weakness for the Heroic Couplet, I wish to salute my fellow teachers and the Faculty of Teachers College with Oliver Goldsmith's appropriate lines:

"There in his noisy mansion, skill'd to rule,
The village master taught his little school . . .
Full well they laugh'd, with counterfeited glee,
At all his jokes, for many a joke had he;
Full well the busy whisper, circling round,
Convey'd the dismal tidings when he frown'd."

ROGER PHILLIPS

DIRECTORATES

President

As our teacher training draws to a close, our responsibilities as students cease; however, our greater responsibilities as teachers of other students are about to be assumed. As we have looked to others for guidance, instruction, inspiration, and encouragement, so will our more youthful pupils look to us.

Perhaps the greatest asset to any individual that can come through inspiration and training is a sense of responsibility; perhaps the greatest need of society today is a keener realization of accountability for service on the part of all who lead and direct the affairs of men. This is true in industry, politics, and morality; it is doubly true in education. Leadership of adults involves great responsibilities, it is true, but leadership of children involves the additional onus of their development during the plastic years of life. The habits of thought and behaviour, together with the ideals and aspirations of the next generation of society in Saskatchewan are being formulated and crystallized in our public schools.

Can he who has eyes to see, ever contemplate a more beautiful or impressive picture than that of a true teacher, keen in mind, rich in imagination, broad in sympathy and pure in heart, leading unerringly along the path toward the ultimate goal of a full and abundant life in so far as the native capacities of each will permit?

In the words of Wordsworth:

"The world is too much with us; late and soon
Getting and spending we lay waste our powers . . ."

In any line of endeavour let it not be said that you have laid waste your powers.

Third Row: Bob Berger, Richard Stradecki, Bob Bland, Glen Brooks, Darold Sauer.

The Students' Representative Council Executive consisted of the following officers:

President	Herb Kindred
Vice-president	Sister Patricia John
Athletic Directorate	Bill Nosen
Drama Directorate	Neil Kowal
Echoes Directorate	Dawn Walker
Intramural Directorate	Carl Hanson
Secretary	Beverley Robertson
Treasurer	Murray Hainer
Music Directorate	Glen Brooks
Social Directorate	Gordon Radmacher
S.T.F. Directorate	Walter Frolic
Yearbook Directorate	Fred Brehaut

The executive, along with the class presidents, formed the Council for the 1962-1963 school year.

The Students' Representative Council was responsible for the supervision and execution of all student activities. The single task that could have been considered to have been its major work was the planning of the budget.

The Council met every Wednesday for regular business, and special meetings were held when necessary.

Two delegates were sent to the Western Canada Student Teachers' Conference which met in Vancouver. One delegate was also sent to the S.T.F. Convention in Saskatoon.

Much help, generally, was readily available from the teaching and office staff, and, in particular, from Mr. Hill, our adviser. The success and smooth running of the Council would not have existed if it had not been for them.

The Council is also as strong as the students who support it. We, therefore, thank sincerely all the students who, through their ready assistance, provided us with our strength.

Western Canada Student Teachers' Conference

James F. Campbell

James Campbell and Gerald Carline represented Saskatchewan Teachers College at the Western Canada Student Teachers' Conference, February 7-9. The conference was held in Vancouver, British Columbia, on the beautiful University of British Columbia campus.

Topics discussed included:

- (1) "What are the implications of Educational Television for Teacher Training?"
- (2) "Resolved that teachers in training are spending too much time learning how to teach in proportion to the time spent learning what to teach."
- (3) "Do Teacher Federations and Associations tend to unionize or professionalize their membership?"

The delegation put forth pros and cons for each of these topics, and satisfactory resolutions were drawn up at the close of the conference.

Introductory speakers for the first two topics included an executive of the British Columbia Telephone Company and the president of the British Columbia Teachers' Federation. A panel of four presented the third topic for discussion within the group.

This conference, however, was valuable for more reasons than the fact that it promoted intelligent thinking and discussion, in that opinions were shared, new concepts of education were introduced from delegates from different provinces, and new friends were made.

One friend gained by every delegate was Dean Scarfe of the College of Education. Dean Scarfe spoke to the group on several occasions, including the closing dinner at which he presented a speech dealing with the "Role of the Teacher."

Following the banquet, elections were held for next year's officers and the host for that conference was announced—the University of Alberta in Edmonton.

Introducing Tagore

a Poet of India

achieved the true kind of unity. That process, he believes, must continue today.

The name of Rabindranath Tagore is a household word in India. He is known as a political leader, a nationalist, a novelist, a dramatist, a story writer, a mystic philosopher, a literary critic, an essayist, but above all as a poet. His interests embrace every subject which is of interest to mankind, but he is essentially a mystic poet, the writer of "Gitanjali," the Nobel prize winner.

His poetical works including plays in verse make well over a hundred volumes. The songs he wrote number more than a thousand. He himself set a great many of them to music. One of his songs, Jana Gana Maha, is India's national anthem. His dance-dramas are staged everywhere in India. There was a time when the poet himself used to appear on the stage, and in this medium, too, he showed unusual talent. Though above all a poet, Tagore wrote excellent fiction. Several of his short stories, built around human values, rank among the world's classics in this genre. His novels, though not of equal significance, are remarkable for their vivid portrayal, depth of realism, and a profound understanding of Indian life. He took to painting when he was nearly seventy and again excelled. His paintings have been exhibited in Paris and elsewhere and were praised by the leading critics of the day.

Tagore's uniqueness as a poet lies in his appeal to the eastern as well as the western mind. He belongs alike to the East and to the West. He seeks a synthesis between Indian traditional values and the materialist concept that came surging from abroad and made a decisive impact on thinking in India. He has no patience with nationalism in the narrow sense of the word, though he is a patriot to the core of his heart. India, he repeatedly points out, has always been the meeting ground of diverse cultures. On Indian soil, age after age, those cultures blended and

The internationalism in Tagore struck a bold note in the days when chauvinism and jingoism were the fashions almost everywhere in the world. In his international outlook Tagore, in fact, was ahead of his time. Tagore, to use the words of Romain Rolland "contributed more than anyone towards the union of the two hemispheres of the spirit."

"In a very real sense Tagore," writes Pearl S. Buck, "was a world poet . . . his eyes were fixed upon the future of mankind when goodness and beauty shall flower out of inspired love, but he lives in the present and his words are valued for the present." The culminating point of Tagore's world outlook is Vishva-Bharati, the international university he founded in 1921. It has drawn as visitors some of Europe's foremost scholars; while the West came to Vishva-Bharati, Tagore went several times to Europe and America. He lectured at Oxford and Harvard, and with him everywhere went the spirit of India. Blessed with complete freedom of mind he had as much to give as to receive.

Tagore is one of the supreme lyric poets of the world. His lyrics are characterized by the sincerity of feelings and vividness of imagery. The music of his verse haunts the reader long after the actual words are forgotten. He loved the earth passionately. There is a hardly a single mood of day or night or of the circling seasons which Tagore has not caught in his poetry.

It is not only the beauty of nature that bound Tagore so intimately to the earth. He also loved the earth as the abode of man. We hear in his poems the "still sad music of humanity" and "fever and fret" of human beings caught in the snares of misfortune. His soul responded sharply to the nationalistic movement of the age, and he gave expression to the agonies of downtrodden and outcasts in his poems. Imbedded as he was with deep humanity and passionate yearning for justice, Tagore was attracted by social and political themes. He has written some bitter satires against the prejudices and superstitions of his own people. With a few exceptions even they show his essential humanism. Even his patriotic poems are imbued with a feeling for all humanity.

Tagore's poetry, in a word, is an amalgam of the rich classical heritage of ancient India, the spacious ways of the medieval India, the simple varieties of the life of common people, and the restless energy and intellectual vigour of modern Europe. He is an inheritor of all times and all cultures. I shall conclude this article with three poems of Rabindranath Tagore:

LEAVE THY CHANTING AND SINGING OF SONGS

Open thine eyes and see thy God is not before thee. He is there where the tiller is tilling the hard ground and where the pathmaker is breaking stones. He is with them in sun and in shower, and His garment is covered with dust. Put off thy holy mantle and even like Him come down on the dusty soil.

Deliverance? Where is deliverance to be found? Our Master Himself has joyfully taken upon Him the bonds of Creation; He is bound with us all forever.

Come out of thy meditations and leave aside thy flowers and incense. What harm is there if thy clothes become tattered and stained? Meet Him and stand by Him in toil and in sweat of thy brow.

When it was day they came into my house and said, "We shall only take the smallest room here." They said, "We shall help you in the worship of your God and humbly accept only our own share of His grace," and then they took their seat in a corner and they sat quiet and meek.

But in the darkness of night I find they break into my sacred shrine, strong and turbulent, and snatch with unholy hands the offerings from God's altar.

Where the mind is without fear and the head is held high;
Where knowledge is free;
Where the world has not been broken up into fragments by narrow domestic walls;
Where words come out from the depth of truth;
Where tireless striving stretches its arms towards perfection;
Where the clear stream of reason has not lost its way in the dreary desert sand of dead habit;
Where the mind is led forward by Thee into ever-widening thought and action
Into that heaven of freedom, my Father, let my country awake.

(Mrs.) SUBHADRA BAKSHI, Class A.

BRONCO BUSTING

The saddle is tight,
My spurs just right,
He's tense as I grab the horn;
I spring a bit
Now in the saddle I sit—
To him this is really foreign.

He looks left,—right,
I'm not in sight,
"Oh, there you are up there;
Well, hold it a bit,
And I'll work up a fit
Then send you out there somewhere."

He may give you a chance
And start with a prance,
But then he feels your weight;
He makes up his mind
To leave you behind
By doing a figure eight.

I'm right in time
When he spins on a dime,
Then throws himself up high;
He comes down with a jolt
As stiff as a bolt
Then his feet go up in the sky.

But I stick tight
—the end is in sight,
I'll soon be his master to reck.
Soon he will stand,
And flinch at my hand
As I wipe the foam from his neck.

I step down from above,
Then pull off a glove
And rub down his glossy frame;
I roll a smoke
Then his mane I stroke,
And think of the next to tame.

BEV CHISAN, Class C.

WHY CANADA NEEDS A PEACE RESEARCH INSTITUTE

"After the end of the World War of 1914, there was a deep conviction and almost universal hope that peace would reign in the world. This heart's desire of all the peoples could easily have been gained by steadfastness in righteous conviction and by reasonable common sense and prudence."

—Winston Churchill.

So spoke Britain's great statesman and orator. Yet, we have heard our parents speak of the bloody horrors of a second World War and we ourselves are on the brink of a third still more catastrophic calamity. That is why Canada needs a Peace Research Institute. We are tired of bloodshed and greed. Peace is a happy, natural state of man, a state of friendliness not of strife. War has brought nothing but suffering, sorrow and destruction; its effect has become more terrible with the advance of civilization and with increase of population and with economic interdependence of nations. If we turn on the radio, if we watch a televised broadcast, if we scan our daily newspaper, what do we hear, see and read? All about the wonders of research, but to what end? War. With so much research aiming at more efficient weapons of destruction, our world is heading for mass suicide. Is it not possible to use science in the search for peace? Yes, and the Peace Research Institute of Canada aims at doing just that.

The founder of the Canadian Peace Research Institute, Dr. Norman Z. Alcock, defines the aim of his Institute as "Creating a world at peace before we are enveloped in thermonuclear war." The Institute has been created for the purpose of prompting research into the cause of war. Its work is not hampered by affiliation with any party, and it is not a money making venture. It deserves the public's recognition and co-operation.

Canada with its strategic position, situated as it is between two great powers, Russia and the United States, is undoubtedly the most logical place in which to inaugurate such a programme. Because of its lack of capital to undergo costly creations of nuclear weapons and ammunition, Canada could place her resources and her efforts at the disposal of an organization of the "chosen few" who can turn their collective research apparatus on problems such as the cause of war, disarmament, and social inventions needed for a warless world.

Winston Churchill once described Canada as a linch-pin between Britain and the United States. She has not always been such, but she might be in promoting peace if the Canadian Research Institute were given a chance to prove itself on Canadian soil.

Canada can never hope to, nor does she want to lead the world in manpower, technical power or political power, but she could lead the world in this new field of peace research. Surely some university could be found to sponsor such an ideal of peace. Surely the Canadian people would be willing to sacrifice a small percentage of their income to the worthy cause of averting war which, in itself, is such an economic burden to mankind and so expensive to each individual. Would not the results achieved by international teams of scientists working on technical and social problems be fitting recompense for such sacrifice? I am convinced it would be.

Since we are living in such an anxious world, moving in the shadows of nuclear warfare, it behooves us, as peace-loving Canadians, to muster the requisite determination to uphold the Canadian Peace Research Institute which is dedicated to eradicating the social disease of war by means of science and reason.

Intramural and Recreational Sports

The Athletic Directorate has as its main responsibility the organizing of athletic and recreational activities for the student body. A result of the varied program which the Directorate provided was the high degree of college spirit which was maintained throughout the year.

The activities of the program were as follows: touch football, bowling, curling, badminton, table tennis, volleyball, mixed basketball, the gym club, and in the spring, softball, baseball, and track and field.

The touch football league had teams from each class. The league concluded with the "Little Grey Cup" game between classes C and L; class L was victorious in this classic. Class L were also finalists in both men's and ladies' volleyball leagues. In these finals the L girls won, but the men of class D defeated L.

Bowling consisted of approximately 40 bowlers and finished with a roll off in March. Also in March the 40 curling rinks completed their season with a bonspiel.

Mixed basketball, an event enjoyed by both participants and spectators, drew great crowds. Each class enjoyed the clash with the rival classes. This made many a noon-hour entertaining.

The winners of the badminton and table tennis tournaments became the representatives of our college in the annual playday with Saskatoon.

Mr. Burgess
Coach

The Comettes enjoyed a very successful season in the Regina Ladies' Basketball League, finishing in a first place tie with the Westerns. In order to win their position in the league they defeated the Regina College Cougettes twice in four games, the Regina General Hospital Nurses four times, and the Westerns in three games of four played. The Comettes defeated the Regina College Cougettes in two straight games to win the semi-final playoff series. In the final playoffs our girls lost to the Westerns, 52-50.

The Comettes won both games of a home and home series with the Saskatchewan Teachers College from Saskatoon. They defeatd Regina Luther College, the University of Saskatchewan Puppettes, and the Intramural Winners from the University, in exhibition games. The Comettes were defeated in a home and home series with the Lethbridge Junior College and lost an exhibition game in Swift Current.

The girls were fine representatives of the Saskatchewan Teachers College and are all to be congratulated. Special thanks go to: Joanne Derby and Joyce Baldwin, the captains; and Dawn Walker and Sandra Wawro, the team managers.

Mr. Gray
 Coach

Anyone who witnessed a boys' basketball game the past year certainly saw some very exciting action. The Comets did not have a winning season, but they certainly had a successful and enjoyable one. Considering the limited facilities available to them, the boys played a high calibre of basketball.

Much of the credit for this goes to the coach, Mr. Gray. He spent hours practising with the team, drilling them and teaching them. I am sure the boys learned a great deal from Mr. Gray. We thank him very much for a job well done.

Let us not forget the managers, Al Booth and Bing Runquist. These fellows worked very hard and certainly deserve much credit. Thanks, boys!

Annual Play Days

SASKATOON

On Saturday, February 9th, two busloads of students made a journey to Saskatoon Teachers College for the annual home and home play day.

The official welcome took place in the college auditorium. Following this, the participants were dispatched to their respective playing areas. The events of the day included badminton, bowling, curling, table tennis, and volleyball. The competition was keen, and all students thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

A dance in the gymnasium brought the day to a close. A long, enjoyable ride home ushered in the morning.

Comets (Hockey)

Under the capable guidance of coach Max Geisthardt and staff adviser Mr. Baker, the S.T.C. hockey team was guided to a season never to be forgotten. In the Junior College League the Comets were undefeated, defeating Regina College, C.B.C., and Luther College by scores of 2-1, 4-1, and 2-1 respectively. In the playoff S.T.C. defeated Regina College in a two game total series by scores of 4-1 and 4-3. In three exhibition games S.T.C. defeated Saskatoon Teachers College 5-4 at Saskatoon, and 3-2 at Lumsden. The boys lost a hard-fought game to Davidson's Intermediate 'B' team, 10-6.

Looking back over the season, we, the hockey team, feel it was a tremendous effort. This was a 'TEAM' in all respects and a great bunch of guys. You might say our motto was "All for one, one for all." On the ice we were brothers, off the ice, the same. The team was a credit to S.T.C. and leaves a challenge for future years. Win or lose, the Comets are always a group of hockey players deserving of support and pride.

The theme of the play days was fellowship and goodwill. This seemed to be carried out to its fullest on both occasions.

REGINA

Regina Teachers College campus was the setting for the second play day on Saturday, February 23rd. Approximately 100 students made the trip from Saskatoon for the play day.

The day began with a hockey game at Lumsden, which 200-250 people attended. The official welcome was made in the college auditorium at 1 o'clock, and the events got under way at 1.30 p.m. John Lipp headed the play day committee which did an admirable job.

The day came to an end on a social note with a dance in the auditorium. Featured at the dance were the "Chessmen" and a folk singing group from the college.

CO-OP MEMBERS SHARE IN THE SAVINGS

Co-op members are consumers just like you and me! They have realized the power of ownership and have used it to their own advantage.

A CO-OP IS MORE THAN JUST A STORE!

You can feel the difference as soon as you enter. The people who shop here are more than consumers. They are all friends and neighbours — people who have decided to share the benefits of ownership with one another! Co-op members always enjoy getting together — especially at their own store!

CO-OPS HELP COMMUNITIES GROW

In any business, it's the owners who benefit the most! Your Co-op is owned by the consumer—possibly by a good percentage of the people of your community. Naturally, when so many people can benefit from one business—the community does too!

CO-OPS ARE DIFFERENT

They're owned by consumers like you and me! The aims of Co-ops are different too, for as consumers themselves, it's the needs of the shopper that come first with these owners! People always benefit through ownership—but even more through co-operative ownership!
